

January night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 37 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

February night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 33 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

March night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 32 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

April night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 34 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

May night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 29 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

June night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 24 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

July night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 26 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

August night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 29 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

September night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 27 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

October night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 26 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

November night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 36 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

December night sky – 35° S

Around 9 pm local time mid-month (about 10 pm with daylight saving; later in the month the same view comes about 2 hours earlier). 37 of the brightest stars above the horizon. Hold the chart overhead with the direction you face at the bottom.

